

Why the Human Being Management and Leadership training?

Leaders and managers act as examples within an organisation and play a key role in developing Human Being Management (HBM) into maturity. Self-confident and curious leaders and managers lay the foundations for talent development of employees and preventing burnout within the organisation. Innovation and performance of the organisation will increase by giving more freedom and delegating responsibilities to lower levels of the organisation and committing to output.

What exactly is the Human Being Management and Leadership training?

The Human Being Management and Leadership training is a two-day course for directors, board members, management and leaders. Before the start of the programme, participants will perform their own online ACT® measurement and give feedback on the results. The feedback also serves as intake for the programme.

You will learn:

- HBM and ACT® in relation to the role of leader, manager and employee.
- Circle of Change as natural mechanism of change.
- How to leverage the talents of your employees.
- How to prevent burnout.
- To apply self-confident leadership and management in actual practice.

What are the elements of this training course?

During this two-day training course, theory will be put into practice and applied to the role and level of supervisors and leaders. Exercises aimed at consciousness-raising are performed individually, in pairs and in groups. Sustainability is created by making leaders and managers aware of acquired behaviour in relation to their natural behaviour and potential.
